APPOINTMENT A BIG SURPRISE KENT'S STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Naming of Man Considered 'Dark Horse' Taken as Personal Triumph For California Progressive

Lucius Eugene Pinkham was nominated governor of Hawaii today by President Wilson.

First news of the action of President Wilson was received at 9:50 o'clock this morning by the Star-Bulletin, the word being "flushed" from Washington by cable. Within half an hour everybody knew it, this paper posting bulletins at downtown centers.

Surprise and some incredulity greeted the news when it was first received, but confirmatory messages quickly dispelled all uncertainty.

The Star-Bulletin received messages from both the Associated Press and its own Washington correspondent giving the news of Wilson's action.

Shortly before noon today Attorney E. M. Watson, who has been a leading candidate for the position, received a cablegram from Congressman Humphreys of Mississippi, a personal friend and strong supporter, stating that Pinkham had been nominated.

Delegate Kuhio cabled the Kapolei estate about the same time this brief message: "Pinkham appointed governor."

To say that Honolulu was surprised is stating it mildly. While a very few men here have been confident that Pinkham was a formidable candidate, the majority considered him not only a dark horse, but, to carry out the figure, a "hundred-to-one shot." It was known that he had the backing of Congressman Kent of California, but Kent's strength with the administration was not known.

The fact that Lane had been credibly reported as having recommended Pinkham had not been enough to make Honolulu believe that he would be named in preference to Watson, L. L. McCandless, G. J. Waller or Delbert E. Metzger, the four Democrats who have been to Washington in connection with their gubernatorial aspirations.

Although Pinkham's nomination is a general surprise and a bitter disappointment to the avowedly Democratic candidates and their backers, no move to oppose his confirmation by the senate developed this morning. Prominent politicians and leading business men alike seemed to take the attitude that Hawaii should now give the new governor every opportunity to "make good."

From the Democratic territorial central committee came the statement that it would not seek to block Pinkham's nomination, and it could not be learned this morning that any organization will lodge a protest in Washington.

L. L. McCandless could not be

GOVERNOR FREAR.

"I have nothing to say with regard to Mr. Pinkham's nomination as governor of Hawaii except that I am glad to be relieved from the position. I wanted to vacate the office during the coming month and I notified the president to that effect. Before I leave, however, I expect to get things up here in good shape for my successor, and I wish him every success."

L. E. Pinkham Wilson's Choice For The Chair

reached today for a statement on the nomination. He had gone to Koolau, it was stated, before the news was received this morning that Pinkham had been named.

Gossip in political circles is already concerning itself with the possibility that McCandless will now become a candidate again for the delegateship. Born in Boston.

L. E. Pinkham was born in the suburbs of Boston, 56 years ago, his parents having moved there from New England. His education was received in the schools of New England and following his graduation from the high school, which he attended at Hartford, Conn., he was forced to leave school and shift for himself. He

W. R. FARRINGTON.
"I am not now and never have been an active or even a receptive candidate for secretary of the territory, or any other paid government office. I have always been friendly with Mr. Pinkham and I have enjoyed the good will of Congressman Kent, but never in my relations with these men have I ever been mentioned or so far as I know, thought of, for any office in the gift of the government. I expect Mr. Pinkham to elect his associates from among his fellow Democrats. You must remember that Pinkham voted for Grover Cleveland and was a supporter of Governor William Russell of Massachusetts."

entered upon a business career in Boston where, after a number of years, he amassed a considerable fortune. Pinkham came to Hawaii for the first time twenty years ago, and entered into a number of undertakings and investments which proved unprofitable. He became well known in the islands and on April 18, 1904, was appointed president of the board of health at Honolulu, and for four years gave the territory one of the most successful administrations which it has ever known. He was a man who was very often misunderstood, but he was honest in all his dealings and the quality of his business transaction was above par.

BERRAM G. RIVENBURGH.

A staunch supporter of Gilbert J. Waller for the governorship, who for a time handled the Waller campaign in Washington, said this morning that the nomination of Pinkham came as a surprise.

"Hawaii is too far from Washington for me to make any statement as to future plans," said Rivenburgh. "I do not know where Mr. Waller is at present, and can not say whether he is in Washington, or whether this will be the end of his campaign for the governorship. I have had no cable from him today."

"Dark Horse" In Lead

M. C. PACHECO.
The appointment of L. E. Pinkham for governor of Hawaii is no surprise to me. The fight between the three leading Democratic gubernatorial candidates has been so bitter and unyielding that the only course that remained to the president was to name a dark horse for governor. While many Democrats will be sorely disappointed at the failure of Mr. McCandless to secure the appointment, I believe that in the appointment of Mr. Pinkham the Democratic party in Hawaii will have a better chance of holding together than it would have if either Watson or Waller had been named. In Mr. Pinkham I know that Hawaii will have an independent and a truly American governor.

a close friend of both President Wilson and Secretary of the Interior Lane.

Reaches Honolulu.

Mr. Pinkham came to Honolulu first in 1893 to erect a coal-handling plant at the terminal of the Oahu Railway & Land Co. B. F. Dillingham had written to Charles Brewer & Co. of Boston, asking them to find a suitable man for that purpose. The Boston firm recommended Mr. Pinkham as a man who would carry out whatever he undertook to do.

After completing the coal plant he returned to the States. When Fred C. Smith, some time later was going away to attend a railway passenger agents' convention, Mr. Dillingham instructed him to see Mr. Pinkham, to tell him that a position would be available for him if he chose to return to the islands. Mr. Smith found Mr. Pinkham engaged in mechanical drafting work in Chicago, and the message to him resulted in his coming again to Honolulu. Mr. Dillingham gave him the position of cashier in the Pacific Hardware Co.'s store. While filling that position he engaged in artesian well-boring on the side, importing a plant for the purpose. He did work

PVORMANN EST. WILL BENEFIT AGED WOMAN

An elderly woman who has spent her life teaching a little school in a remote district of the state of New York will receive a small fortune as a result of the death of John L. Pvormann, who ended his life after killing his mother several weeks ago.

It became known this morning when the Hawaiian Trust Company was made the administrator of the estate of Pvormann, by order of Judge Robinson of the circuit court, that the only known relative of the young man is a Miss Emma Woertman, an aged school teacher of New York, and a sister of the mother of Pvormann.

The entire estate, valued at $27,000, will go to Miss Woertman if no other heirs are found, as the young man died without leaving a valid will. The only instrument of the kind which has been found was written in his own handwriting in San Francisco, bearing the date of June 6, 1894. The will was introduced as evidence this morning, though no attempt was made to probate it, for the reason that it was unwitnessed, hence of no effect here. It made his mother Mrs. Sophia P. Pvormann, the sole beneficiary.

The will was found during a search through the papers of the young man. It was during this search that a letter, written in German and signed by

ARMORY CLAIMS FIRST VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Gus Anderson Falls 75 Feet and Dies En Route to the Queen's Hospital

The victim of a fall of seventy-five feet, striking a heavy iron girder in the descent, Gus Anderson, a sub-contractor engaged in the erection of structural steel and iron work in the new territorial armory building, on Hotel and Miller streets, met death shortly after nine o'clock this morning.

Anderson expired while his mangled remains were being conveyed from the scene of the accident to the Queen's hospital.

Anderson with a fellow workman, named Johnson, were standing on a heavy truss that had been balanced on the top of a pillar.

The story as told the police who immediately responded to a call for assistance and an ambulance is in effect that the breaking of a rope which served to raise and lower and regulate the movements of a big beam, parted resulting in causing the boom to swing wide of the mark, and letting the piece of building material become overbalanced, throwing Anderson and Johnson from their resting place.

Johnson succeeded in clinging to the metal truss with the result that he was soon taken from his perilous position without having suffered injuries.

In falling, Anderson is said to have struck a steel beam about midway to the ground. He suffered a series of bruises and contusions on the left side of the skull and face. His left arm was broken while the right hip

BARON MAY BE KNOWN TO MEN OF THE SERVICE

"Baron G. von Woellwarth," alias Smith, self-styled professor of equestrianism, who for the past few weeks was extensively winned and dined by society of this city, and who mysteriously disappeared from public view on Tuesday, leaving a distinguished line of creditors to mourn his loss, is now believed to still be numbered among the residents of the city.

The erstwhile dishwasher and mess attendant in the Matson Navigation company, who was the principal figure in a spectacular and meteoric career, is said upon excellent authority, to be the guest of friends who would shield the man from a chance meeting with his accusers.

The prediction is now made that von Woellwarth will fall into the clutches of the police before many days have elapsed.

Among several interesting observations which have followed the disappearance of the much-wanted von Woellwarth is a story to the effect that while the alleged member of continental baronetcy was an inmate at Queen's Hospital he extended an invitation to several officials and physicians to attend a banquet, which at a later date was given at one of the prominent hotels of the city, and was an altogether sumptuous affair.

The baron was obliged to undergo a slight operation at the institution through which he was detained there for some days.

Officers of the 25th Infantry here who were stationed at Fort George Wright, Washington, two years ago, are inclined to connect von Woellwarth with a certain Captain Gustav von Meyer, alias Schmidt, who pur-

DR. FERGUSON NEW PRINCIPAL FOR MID-PACIFIC

Prof. Vaughan MacCaughy
Resigns After Short but Successful Term in Office

At the annual meeting of the board of managers of the Mid-Pacific Institute held on the 21st inst., Mr. Vaughan MacCaughy presented his resignation as principal of the Mills school. Mr. MacCaughy has occupied this position only since April 1, but during this time has done very valuable work in reorganizing many departments of the institution and systematizing and strengthening others. He has done very valuable and able work and it was with the deepest regret that his resignation was accepted.

After a very careful study of the institution and its conduct, Mr. MacCaughy felt that to carry on the school in the most efficient and helpful way it was necessary for the principal to live in the building. Having a family and his own home he felt that he could not do justice to the school by being away from it as much as such circumstances necessitated. Consequently he felt it most advisable that the change should be made before the opening of the fall term.

Having communicated this plan to Dr. Scudder, the acting president of the board several weeks ago, a cablegram was sent to Mr. Theodore Richards, a member of the board of managers, who is now in the east, with the result that Mr. Richards has secured for the principalship, Dr. W. P. Ferguson of New York. Dr. Ferguson is a man of long experience in educational work. He was for many years principal of the Hackettstown Intercollegiate school and for several years

LATIN-AMERICA IS UPSET SUSPECTS ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24.—Mediation as Uncle Sam's policy in the present Mexican trouble has been suggested here pending election of a new government to succeed the present provisional organization. The Constitutional junta here has refused to consider the plan because it fears a dishonest election count by the authorities in charge.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 24.—Private cables received in this city and reporting that Secretary of State Bryan has proposed a protectorate by the United States over Central American states have caused a profound sensation. Public protests are being voiced.

Turkey Retakes Territory

LONDON, Eng., July 24.—The Turkish forces in the field have occupied the Bulgarian town of Philippolis and threaten to take Jamboli, fifty-six miles north of Adrianople. They are aggressively retaking the conquered territory.

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 24.—Two "arsonettes," or suffragettes, carrying out the militant methods of burning, were arrested today while attempting to set fire to the mansion of the late Sir John Muir, Lord Provost.

WIFE REMAINS QUIET DURING BURGLAR'S VISIT

MINNEAPOLIS.—While her husband slept Mrs. Frank W. Wiltberger lay quietly in bed and watched a burglar ransack the room and depart with $50 taken from Wiltberger's trousers. The thief overlooked two gold watches and several rings which were in the dresser. He went through every room and secured a lunch from the ice box before leaving. When Wiltberger awoke his wife told him of the robbery. He says that he had long ago warned his wife that should she ever discover a burglar in the house to remain perfectly quiet. She followed his instructions to the letter, he declares.
